- The hunting experience while on Fort Clark Springs is quite unique and will be considered as Residential/Urban Hunting. Fort Clark Springs is approximately 2700 acres of low fenced property. All animals are free-range and roam the property at will. Hunters will be hunting in wooded areas surrounded by Residential and Recreational areas. While hunting you may hear noises of vehicle and pedestrian traffic. Fort Clark Springs is a Private Homeowners Association and has numerous hiking and recreation trails. These trails remain active all year. Certain areas are closed and designated for Rifle Hunting. Certain Bow Hunting takes place in areas near hiking/recreation trails which are not closed off from pedestrian access. No matter what area of Hunting, the hunter will hear noises consistent with an Urban/Residential and Recreational Environment. While hunting on Fort Clark Springs you will encounter people; taking nature walks, bird watchers, jogging, horseback riding, driving ATV's, golf cart traffic, people walking their pets, bicyclist, music from car stereo's along with other vehicle traffic and numerous other noises consistent with any Residential and Recreational area. Gunfire from the FCSA gun range is also possible. Aircraft noise by planes landing, flying out or circling the sky above Fort Clark's Airfield may also be heard. The deer and other animals residing on FCSA property live and thrive in an urban residential environment and are used to the everyday sounds and interactions of people and pedestrian traffic. Do not expect to be hunting in a quiet or secluded area.
